Statewide Pike Waters by Lake Name

Devils Lake (Not Specified) 1,448.5 msl Stocking Survey Report Length Table Length Chart

The walleye population continues to do well. Reproduction in recent years has generally been good and there are many fish less than 15 inches. The number of 15- to 20-inch walleye is below average due to three consecutive year-classes that were relatively low from 2013 to 2015. There are still fish in this size range, but anglers will have to fish longer to catch them. The number of walleye longer than 20 inches is similar to the long-term average.

Northern pike will continue to provide angler opportunities in 2021. Pike are relatively common and can be found throughout the lake, particularly in the shallower areas. The number of pike is likely down somewhat compared to recent years though. Most fish are between 22-32 inches, but trophy-sized pike are available.

The number of catchable-sized yellow perch is similar to last year. The number of perch from 8-12 inches are below the long-term average. The number of jumbos over 12 inches is also below average. Yet, the number of perch smaller than 8 inches is above average. Overall, there should be perch for anglers to pursue in 2021, but their numbers are below average.

White bass numbers are currently high. Most of them were hatched in 2015 and will probably be between 14-16 inches in 2021.

4.5 miles north, .5 miles east of Churchs Ferry. Boat access conditions currently very poor, as the makeshift boat launch site a few miles north of Churchs Ferry is essentially unusable and likely will remain so unless water levels rise significantly.

Walleye population continues to do relatively well. There are a variety of sizes available and good numbers of fish from 15-20 inches.

Northern pike numbers are below average, but they are still abundant. Most pike are medium-sized, but there are some larger fish present. Pike in Lake Irvine are under-utilized, so anglers should not be shy about keeping their limit. In fact, the pike seem to be too abundant, as their body condition is relatively low at times, so keeping pike from this lake would be beneficial for the pike population as it may help reduce competition for food.

Yellow perch numbers are low, but the few perch in the lake tend to be larger.

White bass numbers are low, but they tend to be good-sized.

Fish populations in Lake Alice are similar to those in Lake Irvine. (No ramp). (No ramp).

Missouri River (Not Specified) 1,652.1 msl Stocking Survey Report Length Table Length Chart

The fishery downstream of Garrison Dam to the South Dakota border was greatly impacted following the flood of 2011. The Garrison Reach of the Missouri River upstream of Bismarck has been slow to recover and still suffers from depressed forage conditions. Walleye reproduction was good from 2014-16, so smaller walleye are present in good numbers and this fishery continues to provide opportunity for trophy-sized fish.

Garrison Dam Tailrace continues to maintain a diverse quality fishery, especially for walleye, brown trout, rainbow trout and salmon. Channel catfish are abundant and underutilized throughout the entire reach.

Lake Sakakawea \(Not Specified\) 1,836.4 m Stocking Survey Report Length Table Length Chart

Walleye fishing was good in 2020 and should remain so in 2021. High forage abundance and good habitat conditions have allowed Sakakawea walleye to maintain good body condition, good growth rates and high abundance. Walleye abundance and size structure did moderate in the middle and upper regions of the reservoir in 2020, but remains above the long-term averages. Anglers should find good numbers of 14- to 20-inch fish in 2021 as several strong, young year-classes were recruited to the fishery. Good numbers of larger fish are available, but primarily in the lower reservoir.

Northern pike abundance has declined from record highs the last decade, but still remain good. Large trophy-sized pike exceeding 15 pounds are abundant in the reservoir.

The smallmouth bass population remains good and anglers will continue to encounter good numbers of fish. The population also contains good numbers of whopper-sized fish.

The Missouri River salmon fishery was greatly affected by high water in 2011, but recovered and salmon fishing in 2016-17 was good, but somewhat slower in 2019 and 2020. Fall spawning operations in 2020 found exceptional numbers of spawning fish in Sakakawea and egg collection goals were easily met. The effects of high entrainment in 2018 and 2019 should continue to lessen on the Sakakawea salmon fishery in 2021.

The walleye population is doing well. There are a variety of sizes available, with good numbers of fish. The size groups that anglers would be interested in are all above average right now.

Northern pike numbers are below average, but pike are still available. Most pike are between 25-34 inches, but there are smaller and larger fish present.

Yellow perch are relatively abundant. However, many of the fish will likely be under 9 inches or so. Overall, there should still be perch fishing opportunities in 2021, but fishing may be slower than usual for perch larger than 10 inches.

White bass are still relatively common. Most bass will likely be between 15-17 inches in 2021.
